

Director of Education and Workforce Innovation Center of Excellence in Leadership of Learning

University of Indianapolis

The Center of Excellence in Leadership of Learning (CELL) at the University of Indianapolis seeks applications for a Director of Education and Workforce Innovation. This is a two-year, grant-funded, full-time, exempt staff position.

The Director of Education and Workforce Initiatives oversees CELL's Education Workforce Innovation Network (EWIN). The director will work closely with various state agencies, regional economic and workforce development leaders, and school leaders to better align the state's educational and workforce development sectors. This position includes project management and budget responsibilities and will provide oversight of all staff working on the EWIN project.

Qualifications: Master's Degree in education or education related field is required and three years of experience in education or workforce field with a preference given to those in a leadership role. The successful candidate will have broad knowledge regarding state and federal workforce development policy, experience working with K-12 and post-secondary institutions in development/innovation strategies, possess excellent interpersonal and communication skills, and have experience in grant writing/project development strategies.

Apply electronically at <https://jobs.uindy.edu>. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until filled.

The University of Indianapolis is an equal opportunity employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, ethnicity, color, race, creed, sex, sexual orientation or identity, marital status, national origin, disability status or protected veteran status. The University of Indianapolis does not discriminate on the basis of sex in its educational programs and activities, including employment and admission as required by Title IX.